A to Z Tips for Expert Jewellery Designing

When designing a piece of jewellery for an individual, many aspects should be kept in mind- the person whom you are designing for, and particular shapes, styles, and colors for that particular type of personality, essential requirements and limitations necessary to make the piece comfortable and functional. If these aspects are kept in mind, your client will have a piece of jewellery that will fit her individual personality, way of life, and be most becoming to her appearance. In this way the client will acquire jewellery that can become an integral part of her wardrobe and remain a cherished

We must also note the client's age factor i.e., child youth or old person while designing. Secondly, we need to know the type of jewellery piece required, what is it i.e. ring, earring, pendant, brooch, or necklace? This is the most important point which is needed to be remembered during designing any jewellery.

Then basic variations are there— should it be real or costume jewellery?

Theme & Occasion:

After deciding the type of jewellery piece, a designer should know the customer's choice of design. Some time the customer wants the design on a particular theme, for example Valentine theme, musical, ocean or it may be the love theme.

Then we must design on that particular theme, keeping in mind recent trends.

This also matters as to when the customer wants to wear it and on what occasion- whether it is for Engagement, Wedding, Birthday, Anniversary, Valentine's day, Deepawali, Idd, Christmas or Evening party or regular wear. So the designer has to design jewellery accordingly.

Exact Size of the Jewellery Piece :

Some jewellery pieces need a certain size to wear i.e. Ring, Bangles, Bracelets, Necklaces, etc. Ring Size may be 5 us to 13 us (15.7 to 22.2 m.m.). Use a ring that determines the required ring size. Place this ring over the nearest size circle. The inner edge of the ring should align with the outer edge of the circle. If your ring appears to fit between two sizes, buy the larger size. Women's Standard Necklace Sizes can be 16" Closer length, 17-18" Will reach the collarbone and head string - 30" Below the chest and for male's Standard Chain Sizes can be 18" Base of the neck -for smaller neck sizes, 20" to collarbone -The most common length for the average size man, 22" to 24" A few inches below the collarbone. Similar to ring and the necklace bracelet must be designed according to a particular size. The standard bracelet size is 7 1/4" to 7 1/2", Average woman's wrist 8 1/2", Average man's larger wrist -9". So keep in mind the size factor too. The design has to be sized accordingly.

Metal:

It is important to sketch out the design before it is converted into the real jewellery piece, hence the designer must show metal rendering in the design i.e. what is the choice i.e. gold, silver, platinum, alloy, brass or any other metal.

Jewellery is made of various materials available. While high-quality and aesthetic pieces are made with precious metals, lesser
